

ABSTRACT

A system for sending electronic messages (data, voice, picture, or other) to specific motorists or motor vehicles using their license plate information is disclosed. Internet, wireless email, and instant messaging systems provide much of the core competency of the system. Proximity messaging systems between motorists and/or motor vehicles that are near each other are also disclosed. Examples of private and public sector business models and methods of using such system are disclosed.